FOREMER RESIDENT OF CITY

ACCOUNT GIVEN

Of Terrible Disaster That Cost Hundreds of Lives and Destroyed Japanese Cities.

At the time of the report or the terrible volcanic outbursts at Kago-shima, Japan, great fear was expressed by friends of Theodore R. Hoyer, who was formerly employed in the Badger Drug Company in this city, and whose home was in Watertown, that he might have been among the unfortunates who lost their lives.

earthquakes which devastated the island of Sakura and the town of Kagoshima, destroying hundreds of lives on Jan. 14, is given today by Theodore R. Hoyer, of Watertown, Wisconsin, who was an eye witness.

"The volcano of Sakura-jima at the beginning of the eruption resembled a Niagara of fire from which masses of molten stone were hurled long distances."

During the night of Jan. 14 a loud explosion was heard followed by a flash of flame and a cloud of ashes rising many thousands of feet into the air.

Beneath the cloud of smoke and ash broad streams of lava could be plainly seen flowing down the slopes to the sea. The forests on the mountain side quickly caught fire and the flames spread little by little to the numerous small houses of the numerous little villages near by.

The entire western coast line of Sakurajima seemed to be ablaze and strong wind carried smoke, gas and hot ashes straight to the sea land. From Kagoshima three miles across from the city people fled in panic stricken crowds, many of them ascending the steep sides of Shiroyama mountain and looking back from there in terror.

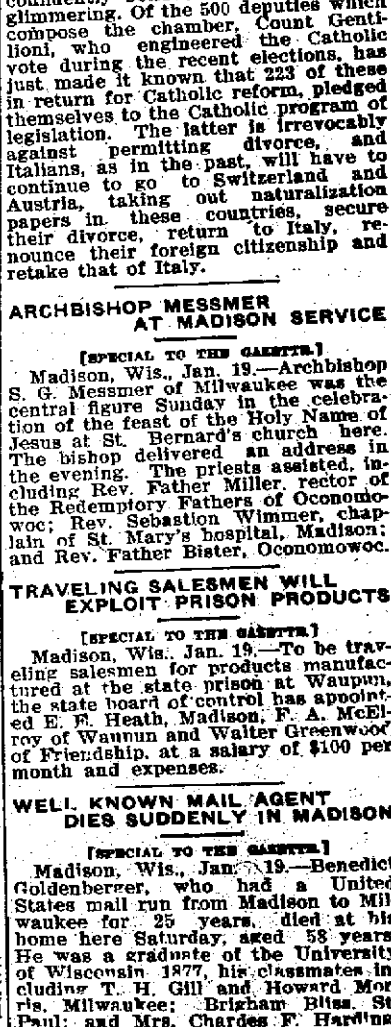

"Sakura-Jima was still actively smoking and cinders, but

"The occupants of the boat could, however, observe that the villages along the shore with their rice fields and gardens had been leveled by the moulten lava, while the surrounding forests had been destroyed." Sakura-Jima
"The principal road a mile wide in were numerous smaller craters emitting smoke and flames. Beneath each opening there were great plateaus of cooling lava. The two old craters of the volcano had been forced into one by the destruction of the dividing

In this vicinity the weather is likely to continue unsettled tonight and Tuesday, possibly with light rain. It will be somewhat cooler Tuesday, but probably not much below freezing.

TO THE RESCUE.

The rumble of discontent which is disturbing the state, because of increased taxation, has caused the man responsible for much of the trouble to get up and take notice, and commencing next week his mouth will publish the first of a series of ten articles on taxation.

These articles will be prepared by Professor Adams, formerly of the State University now of the Tax Commission, and it is safe to say that when the series is completed, the tax receipt, noted for brevity, will be more convincing as an argument than the whole bunch.

It is idle for La Follette, or any of his emissaries to argue about taxation. The taxes are here, and we the taxpayers must step up to the thought line men, and pay the bill.

We have enjoyed the dance for a number of years, and in our hypnotic state cherished the vain delusion that the fiddler would forget to demand his pay.

The people have become satiated with reform, and we have allowed the King Bee reformer to put one over on us, whenever the spirit moved. It remains to be seen whether we will swallow another dose.

A STRANGE TALE FROM ILLINOIS

On September 3 last forty-five convicts from the state penitentiary at Joliet boarded a special interurban car for Aurora, Ill. here they took a special car on the Chicago & Northwestern railroad to Dixon. They were dressed in civilian clothes and only two unarmed guards accompanied them.

One night when the men were gathered in the big tent which is used in common in the evening, an alarm of fire came to the camp and the whole forty-five followed the superintendent over the fields and through woods for two miles until they reached a farm where a big barn was blazing, threatening outbuildings and residence. They succeeded in saving the house and outbuildings but the barn had to go. At midnight forty-five convicts arrived at their camp unguarded, and lay down to a well-earned rest.—Christian Herald.

Wherever the experiment of humane treatment has been tried the discovery is made that a large majority of the men serving time are victims of drink or misfortune rather than of criminal intent.

Where confidence is placed in men, they can usually be trusted. This has been the experience in Oregon and other states that have tested the method, and the same principle holds true in our state under the commitment law.

It is better to help men up than to hold them down and prison reform is along right lines. It will help unfortunate men retain their self respect, and that is worth everything.

Perhaps when women get the ballot married men will not dare take their wives to the theater for fear of being arrested for trying to buy their votes.

With 1,400 German firms agreeing to send exhibits to the Panama exposition it doesn't make much difference whether the German government co-operates or not.

An Italian composer has written a comic opera entitled "The Love of Three Kings." But the love of three kings means tragedy if a full house happens to be out.

The statement that it has been paying poultry prices for 100,000 tons of sand every week must stick unpleasantly in New York's crop.

A course in horseshoeing has been added to the Cornell curriculum. But wouldn't a course in cranking automobiles have been better?

Married men, according to General Wood, are better fighters than bachelors. Perhaps it is because they have more practice.

Can it be that the man who announces a profit-sharing plan must insure his shop windows and prepare to dodge bricks.

Cable advices support the opinion that Kaiser Wilhelm is more successful at sawing wood than at saying nothing.

It is a good rule to believe only half of what you hear, but it takes a smart man to know which half is the right one.

In the event of a second offense Mr. Thaw ought to be fairly easy to identify, if not to convict.

Heart to Heart Talks
By CHARLES N. LURIE

"THE GHOST OF A HALFPENNY."

In Boswell's "Life of Johnson," a literary mine which is rich in nuggets as well as in much diffused gold, you will find the following:

"Foots used to say of Garrick that he walked out with an intention to do a generous action; but, turning the corner of a street, he met with the ghost of a halfpenny, which frightened him."

There may have been a libel on David Garrick, the famous actor, who, according to all accounts, was a man of fine traits.

But—

The world has too many other men and women who permit themselves to be deterred from the commission of a good deed by the "ghost of a halfpenny."

As there is truth in the old saying that "time is money," it should also be written that these faint-of-hearts allow the ghost of a particle of time to scare them.

They have every intention of doing something good, but the doing means the expenditure of money or time or trouble. And so, in the hope that some one else will see to the commission of the good deed that should be done, they settle themselves back comfortably in their easy chairs.

The act of charity or mercy or kindness remains undone, and the suffering which might be relieved goes on.

It is not innate unwillingness or lack of reformatory intention which permits distress to exist and continue, but the "ghost of a halfpenny" of time or money or trouble.

The would-be philanthropists permit themselves to be scared too easily. It is amazing to reflect upon what small things will hold back persons from acts of mercy or charity or public duty.

The temperature of the air is a few degrees too high or too low, there is a trifle too much snow on the ground or a little too much rain is falling, there is a slight derangement of the bodily functions—too trifling to be called an illness—and the philanthropist permits his or her good intentions to stifle.

Such things are the "ghost of a halfpenny" of which Foots wrote.

The Diary of a Bonehead.
The trouble with the average newspaper nowadays, I find, is that it does not have enough sections to go around. When the paper comes to our house in the morning every member of the family grabs for a section of it and there are not enough to go around.

This morning I secured the advertising section of the morning paper and my wife secured the editorial section.

"I would like to trade sections with you, my dear," I said. "I want to glaze over the editorials."

"So do I," said the wife, "and, besides, the society column is on the other side. You can't have it. Read what you have got."

I then asserted my authority in my usual fashion. Every man should be the head of his own house. I made my wife give up the editorial section and I thrust the advertising section into her hands. Instead of being peeved, she seemed to brighten up wonderfully and she smiled a glad sweet smile as she delved into the advertising section as though it were one of Bob Chambers' hammock novels.

I wondered why she took the thing so calmly and when I got him this evening I found out.

"That was just the loveliest advertising section you gave me this morning," she said. "There were some of the grandest bargains I ever saw and just to think that I would never have known anything about them if you hadn't forced it upon me. I have been down town all day and by scripping a little I managed to keep the bills inside of $300. The things are all going to be delivered tonight."

Rules of Etiquette.
Do not tuck the napkin under your chin in order to save your shirt from the soup and tomato catsup. That isn't proper. Tuck it around your neck.

When you go to a party do what your wife tells you to and you will make no mistake, for she has found out all about it in a book.

Don't crack jokes with the servants. It is hard enough to distinguish the guests from the waiters.

SOLID STREAM OR SHOWER

A Faucet Attachment Which Delivers Water in Any Shape.

The water which comes from an ordinary spigot generally issues forth in a somewhat broken column which splashes around in all directions when it strikes the bottom of the sink. There are attachments to be placed on the nozzle which transform this into a splashless stream, but the newest thing in kitchen paraphernalia is a device which when placed on the end of the spigot delivers a shower or a solid stream as desired. This fits tightly on the end, but is made in two parts, one moving within the other. A twist in one direction causes a solid column of water to fall from the center while a turn in the other direction transforms the stream into a shower falling on a rather broad area.

SMOKE ON TOY LOCOMOTIVE

Cotton-covered Wire Lends to Realistic Appearance of Choo-choo.

The toy locomotives made for nursery use are so cleverly constructed that, with this little addition, they are made to look like the real thing. So, taking the suggestion, the inventor has made an imitation of smoke, which is to be seen bursting with startling realism from

HAMMER WITH A POCKET

A Little Recess in the Handle to Accommodate a Nail Set.

Taking advantage of the fact that the hammer and the nail-set are almost inseparable companions in the shops of carpenters and cabinetmakers, and knowing what an aggravating way the nail-set has of getting lost under the litter of the workman's bench, an inventor has designed a hammer which contains a secret pocket in the handle for the accommodation of the nail-set.

The pocket is a secret one, for when the nail-set is stowed away in the interior of the hammer handle, a sharp eye would be required to detect the opening. When the nail-set is wanted for use it is always to be found with its companion, the hammer.

WHEN STANTON LAUGHED
By L. F. ADAMS

The butler returned with Stanton's card and the impressive announcement: "Miss Carver's not in, sir."

Stanton smiled grimly.

"Very well, Howes," he said, calmly picking up a magazine and settling back comfortably. "I'll wait until Miss Carver is in. And, by the way, Howes," he added as the butler turned to go, "you'll favor me by conveying that bit of information to Miss Carver at once."

He fished in his pocket and drew out a half dollar, which he flipped to the butler with a meaning nod, and Howes departed, the ghost of a grin showing at the corners of his mouth.

A fire burned on the broad hearth, and as the stairs creaked beneath the portly Howes, Stanton piled on wood and worked the bellows until he had a small-sized conflagration roaring cheerfully.

He was just hanging up the bellows when the portieres were whisked angrily aside, and Katherine Carver stood before him, a spot of red burning in either cheek and hard lines showing about her pretty mouth.

"Hello!" said Stanton cheerfully. "Back early, aren't you? Glad I waited."

"Well?" she said shortly, coming a step nearer and giving an unpleasant infection to the word.

"Very well, thank you," said Stanton, imperturbably. "And you?"

Miss Carver glared at him.

"Won't you sit down by my fire?" he went on politely. "I had no end of trouble to get it going."

"What have you come for?" she asked triggly.

Stanton looked thoughtfully into the fire for a moment.

"I didn't come to rob the house," said he, "nor to commit murder. I think I must have come to apologize."

"It is too late," said she.

"Then I'll come earlier tomorrow," he returned. "May I ask what time the receipt of apologies ceases?"

"It ceased last evening at ten—and it ceased forever," said Miss Carver.

"Oh, I say!" Stanton protested, "really, that's not fair."

"It's quite as fair as your remarks of last evening," she replied.

"Honestly, I'm sorry," said Stanton. "I was beside myself."

"So it would seem," she observed tartly.

"And when I called you a heartless flirt and the rest of it, I was irresponsible," said he. "I take it all back except—"

"He paused.

"Except what?" she asked.

"Well, I'll take it all back—no exceptions, if you say so," he said meekly.

"Oh, it doesn't matter," she mused indifferently.

"No, I suppose not," he said. "Still, I'm really sorry. Won't you sit down by the fire and hear my side of it?"

Miss Carver hesitated.

"Won't you?" he pleaded.

She came to the fire and took the chair he had drawn up for her.

"Proceed," she said, still practicing an economy of words.

"Katherine," he said slowly, "you know how devout a worshiper I've been; you know how patiently I've waited and what—what encouragement you've given me. Well, yesterday when I heard of your engagement to Cawthorne—"

"To whom?" she gasped, suddenly attentive.

"To Cawthorne," he repeated. "I heard it at the club."

Miss Carver suddenly burst out laughing. She covered her face with her hands and went into convulsions of merriment. Stanton stared helplessly.

"I wish I might see it in that humorous vein," he said gloomily.

"Do you mean to tell me that the announcement of Mr. Cawthorne's engagement was responsible for your outburst last night?" she asked between hysterical giggles.

"Yes," he said. "I was angry then; but today I've come to offer apologies and to add my congratulations. He has a mint of money, I hear."

"Oh," she gasped, convulsed in laughter again, "it's too funny! Mr. Cawthorne is engaged to Miss Cynthia Carver—Aunt Cynthia. It's the culmination of a romance that began before I was born."

"Oh, Lord!" said Stanton softly, but in tones of infinite relief.

He picked up his hat and coat. At the door he turned.

"Not going?" she asked.

"Yes, I'm going to the club to announce your engagement to me," he said with an air of finality.

"I haven't given my consent," she said with reddened face.

Stanton chuckled.

"Well, in response to your urgent invitation, I'm coming back to dine with the family, and I'll get it then," said he.

WESTMINSTER GUILD OF PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH TO MEET.
The Westminster Guild of the Presbyterian church will meet for supper and a social hour, tomorrow evening at the church at 6:15.

MEETING TONIGHT IS TO DECIDE DETAILS

GATHERING AT Y. M. C. A. OF ACTIVE WORKERS IS CALLED FOR.

A CAMPAIGN STARTED

At Nine O'clock Tomorrow Active Work of Raising Necessary Funds Will Be Started.

Fifty women prominently identified with church and social life in Janesville, and a hundred men whose names are guarantees of the success of any enterprise with which they become identified will assemble in the Y. M. C. A. hall this evening at 6:30 o'clock where will be held the opening supper and business meeting in connection with the campaign for $50,000 for Mercy Hospital.

During this campaign the team captains and others have urged all whom they have asked for service to promise to faithfully attend the opening meeting this evening, also to attend all the luncheon meetings which will be held every noon the remainder of this week, beginning tomorrow noon.

At the meeting this evening the places will be assigned the various teams. There will be six teams of ladies and twelve teams of men.

This evening and at the luncheon meetings the remainder of this week the teams will occupy separate individual tables. Teams will work together in the solicitation of subscriptions for the campaign. Team reports will be made each meeting beginning tomorrow noon. There will be a large score board in the Y. M. C. A. hall where the workers meet. Each team report will be entered on this board. Immediately after each noonday meeting the reports will be taken and the score board will be up to date. The campaign will begin tomorrow morning at nine o'clock arrangements will be made today with the proprietors of factories whereby they will turn their whistles. Bells will be rung and special stress will be laid on the fact that the work of raising the debt on Mercy Hospital has been taken up as a good citizenship movement.

Following is the form of the pledge on which subscriptions will be taken: Janesville, Wis., Jan. 19, 1914.

For the purpose of liquidating the burdensome debt now handicapping Mercy Hospital, Janesville, and for the purpose of supplying the given erection of a laundry, and other necessary improvements, and in consideration of the subscriptions of others, I promise to pay to S. M. Smith, treasurer, the sum of Dollars.

One eighth of above amount being payable on each of the following dates: February 15, 1914
August 15, 1914
November 15, 1914
February 15, 1915
May 15, 1915
August 15, 1915
November 15, 1915

At the meeting this evening the workers will be urged to call attention in each case to the fact that subscriptions are to be paid in installments covering a period of two years. There will, of course, be some cash offered, but the majority of subscriptions will come in on time payments. There is no cash required until the middle of next month and the members of the committee state that there is no reason why any party who has the welfare and advancement of Janesville at heart could not make a more than ordinarily liberal subscription.

Elsewhere in today's Gazette will be found a complete statement of the financial condition of the hospital. This statement has been presented previously to committees of business men and others and the campaign committee has made special request that it be printed in the Gazette today. The public will be fully informed on the financial affairs of the hospital.

POLICE DEPARTMENT EXPECT GREAT HELP FROM BLOODHOUNDS

Pair Four Months Old of English Descent Will Arrive Thursday.

By Thursday of this week it is expected that the pair of pure blooded English bloodhounds which the police of Janesville have purchased will arrive, and petty criminals here will find that the four footed detectives will be hard ones to dodge.

The efforts of Patrolman Sam Brown and the amount to buy the pups, was subscribed by members of the force, Mayor, Fathers, Judge, Maxfield, Harry Nowlan and Thomas Miel.

The pups, purchased at four months of age and will be ready for trailing by spring time. The dogs were obtained from the famous English blood hound kennels of Max J. Kennedy, Fredonia, Kansas. Kennedy's kennels are known throughout the United States for their stock is all registered and are guaranteed to make man-trailers after a short period of training.

The dogs brought for the police force are stated to be the best at the Fredonia kennels and were full pedigreed, and registered English bloodhounds.

While many police departments are equipped with dogs, it is seldom that pure blooded English dogs are found as they are very expensive and the average police bloodhound is but a well bred fox hound which were called the slaver's time.

The real bloodhound is a savage looking beast, but his appearance does not make him an injustice. He does not resemble in the least the great canine that pursues the slaver's time.

One "Uncle Tom's Cabin" put has a pleasant disposition and is inclined to make friends. Often dogs loose these admirable qualities by training and show the same qualities by training.

CONTESTS DIVORCE; WIFE GETS DECREE

Gertrude Johnstone Granted Separation from Robert Johnstone on Grounds of Desertion.

Judge George Grimm granted a divorce to Gertrude Johnstone from Robert Johnstone in circuit court this morning on the grounds of desertion. The husband contested the case and filed a cross bill. The plaintiff was awarded the custody of the three minor children and the court ordered that the defendant shall pay $200 a month toward their support.

Johnstone, who has been employed at a local lumber yard for some months past, admitted that he had neglected to see his wife or children for some time, his only reason being that he knew he would either get a cold reception or be shut out entirely. He claimed that he was not making money enough to support his family. Mrs. Johnstone has been living with her mother in this city since the latter part of 1912.

Motions for new trials were overruled by Judge Grimm in two cases this morning. J. Neither case will be appealed.

WILL TANGO DANCES SURVIVE CENSURING BY BIG LEADERS?

Despite Great Crusade by Clergy,
Press and Reformers Questionable
Dance Gains Popularity.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
New York, Jan. 19.—Molehills
often have been made into mountains,
and in this series comic age tempers
in teapots are of hourly occurrence, but certainly never before was there a greater sub-bub over a mere insignificant matter than all this hue and cry
after the tango. The poor old tango
is being talked and written to death.
Nobody ever yet was kidnapped, dragged by the hair onto a ball-room floor and made to dance the tango. Those who do not like it are at liberty to let it alone.

The dance, though, may be said to have received several death blows
within the last few days. The Catholic church turned its thumbs down on the tango and it had an immediate effect in New York. About the same time several Irish British peesesses
who are among the leading London
hostesses pulled out a boy and a girl cotton of the dance. Several weeks ago
the tango was given a cut in the north of Europe when the Kaiser ordered it suppressed wherever the German army
officers went, and the tango was followed by an attack in the south of Europe
that while not so vigorous was equally effective.

Barred in Italy.
King Victor Emmanuel, of Italy,
without making a speech about it,
barred the tango from his state ball
and all the diplomats and the social leaders of Rome followed the King's example. Perhaps the first important personage to get her heel on the neck
of the gyrating monster of the ballroom and the cabaret was Queen Mary of England, who called it a South American "negroid" dance and forbade
the young Princess Mary to learn it.

Whether the tango is good or bad,
it received a considerable set-back
when Cardinal Farley and high Protestant clergymen let it be known that they opposed it and that everything possible be done to discourage it.
Pope Pius has not banned the tango
but he has made it plain that he dis-
approves of it and relates the world over are now fighting the tango. The New York Cardinal did not ban the dance, but his known disapproval is as effective as a ban. When the Secretary to His Eminence announced the Cardinal's attitude, thousands of Catholics in the metropolis feared that the tango. "The Cardinal feels that the tango is degrading and he has resolution to do all he can to discourage it,"
the secretary said. A Monsignor high in Catholic affairs in New York went further in his condemnation of the tango. He said:

"Any person of intelligence can see,
by watching any ball or cabaret in the greater city that the present mode of dancing is open to the charge of impropriety, if not actual indecency."

Censorship Committee.
Because of the clerical opposition to the tango, the Junior Auxiliary Institute, an organization of fashionable
women, abandoned a dance and entertainment they had arranged at the monica's and recalled 600 invitations that already were out. For the same reason the Knights of Columbus announced they would have no tango at their gigantic ball in Madison Square Garden next month. Ten thousand people will dance at this ball, and the Knights of Columbus have appointed a censorship committee of 150 to see

there is no tangoing.

Safer on Stage.
But while these crusades against the tango are under way and undoubtedly
are doing great execution, the dance
continues popular in many quarters and is even gaining ground. Out in Los Angeles one of the vaudeville theaters has arranged intermissions
between the acts during which time
the patrons are at liberty to tango up and down the aisles and in the foyer.
It is safe to say that not a performance
is given in any one of the New York
amateur theaters that there is not
at least one dancing number on the program that includes an exhibition of the tango. It is an even safer assertion to say that there is not one restaurant in the thousands in the greater
city where a cabaret is maintained,
that the tango is not danced. Experts portray the tango on the platforms and the guests tango in the spaces between the tables.

Broad minded people say that the goodness and badness of the tango is a matter of opinion and of the personal equation. The dance, expert dancers say, may be done gracefully and beautifully so that the most prudent cannot object, while there are varieties of dips, leaps and hugs, unjustly called
the tango, that are undeniably shocking. Some persons with a smattering of Latin think that tango comes from the Latin word meaning "to touch,"
and evidently that is why they like
it. But the tango of polite ball-rooms
is not of Latin extraction. Latin American, perhaps, but in no wise dead. Such well known women as Miss Anne Morgan and Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, social leaders, have come to the rescue of the maligned tango. They say that the tango, as done in their set, is as modest as a waltz, and those who see evil in it have themselves to blame. Taking it by and large, being neither for or against the much discussed South American dance it may be said without qualification that the tango is in great danger of decadence when both church and state, the prelates and the royalties who are social arbiters, turn against it.

PRESENT ANOTHER ANGLE TO HORNE WILL CASE

Appeal from Order of County Court Heard Before Judge Grimm.

This Afternoon.
Hearing on the appeal from an order of the county court, dismissing
the petition for citation of the executor of the will of William Horne, deceased, was heard before Judge Grimm in circuit court this afternoon. Attorney E. H. Ryan, for the heirs of William Horne took the appeal, while Attorney Thomas S. Nolan, represented the heirs of Mrs. Horne. The matter involved the question of ownership of the sum of $800 claimed by both estates.

Each Hair Distinct.
Each hair commences its life in a minute pit, or follicle, of the skin and has a tip that is gradually pushed upward by the development of tiny cells
in the bulb or root. Oil glands at the side of the latter supply the hair with grease, so that when one is pulled out
it appears as a ball of fatty substance.

However long a hair may be, its free,
or most distant end, is the oldest, because it is in and around the neck of the bulb that new cells are added, and therefore push out the already finished length.

ALBERT E. WIGGAM WRITES FIRST OF EUGENIC ARTICLES

Family Tree of the Rabbit Reveals a
New Science to World—Heredity
Is Important.

Albert E. Wiggam, the well-known journalist and lecturer, has written a series of articles for this newspaper on the general subject of eugenics. Mr. Wiggam has studied the subject many years and is regarded as an authority, although many scientists differ with him on important points. Because space is given to Mr. Wiggam's views in these columns, it does not necessarily follow that this newspaper indorses all
the statements contained in his articles.

(By Albert E. Wiggam.)
In the family tree of the rabbit
shown above it one of the most startling discoveries science has given to the world is that the most prudent cannot predict sound children. At last!

The mystery-house of heredity is unlocked.
Gregor Mendel, an Austrian priest,
gave us the key. Mate a black rabbit with a white one. The children will all be black. If you don't believe it, try it. Professor Castle of Harvard and Dr. Davenport of the Carnegie Institution have tried it thousands of times.

More astonishing still! Mate the black children together and then what? Ah! the grandchildren (third line of diagram) are one white to three blacks. Now the blacks look alike. But they are not alike. One of the three—we can't tell which one until we try by mating—when mated
with black produces only pure black offspring. The white ones, the grandmother and the white uncle or aunt will never reappear.

What if insanity is like the whiteness of the rabbits? How happy the black fellows would be! A race free from insanity! And what if most forms of crime, imbecility, chronic pauperism, nervous prostration, extreme alcoholism and epilepsy were like recessive hidden dominant like the whiteness? Think of it! A race free from crime! Happy, happy humanity! What a glorious world it would be! But! Reformers, preacher,
doctor, politician, sociologist, listen!

The highest authorities on heredity
in the world believe that insanity is the same, as the whiteness of the white rabbits.

They believe it could be bred out
forever and in the same way.

Mate the white rabbit (third line)
with white and blackness will never reappear in any of the children. What if catarrh of the eye in children
which causes so much blindness
should be found to be like the blackness in the rabbits? Dr. Davenport and many great authorities believe that in children catarrh of the eye
is like the blackness of the rabbits.
It is "dominant." If both parents have it either all or three-fourths of the children will have it. If but one parent has it either all or one-half the children will have it. Huntington's chorea, a dreadful disease, is also a "dominant" like catarrh.

Lastly mate the two blacks together (middle of third line) and the same results are repeated—ones white
and three blacks. Instantly idiotcy
and "recessive" defects would run
like the whiteness and show in one-fourth of the children. Catarrh of the eye would show in three-fourths,
provided the parents had had the same ancestry for these diseases as the rabbits have for color.

The highest authorities will tell you that when Br'er Bear, the clergyman of the woods, married Mr.
and Mrs. Rabbit he was right when he said:

"Whoa! Have you a health and heredity certificate? I will not marry you without both. For I don't want to work my life away and pay
out money that I want to use to educate my own children in taking care
of your weaklings and defectives."

Many many people are submitting their pedigrees before marriage to the eugenics office. Where the judgment is adverse they have accepted it.
Health is important; heredity a thousand times more important.

BATHTUB HIDDEN IN COUCH

A Happy Feature for the Advocate of Condensed Housekeeping.

The tendency is now in the direction
of simplified and condensed housekeeping. The elaborate processes and methods which have been followed for some time have fallen off, their own
weight and certainty which contribute to alleviating the work of the housewife being accepted. The combined couch and bathtub shown in the accompanying cut has just been patented in a compact space it contains all the features

COUCH AND BATHTUB COMBINED.

A bathroom and is particularly designed for the use of those persons who are unable to secure a suite of rooms with the regular bathroom. The only drawback about the couch combination
is that the water must be carried.
It will be seen from the cut that there is a mirror and provision for soap, towels and similar conveniences.

HAZEN GIVES TALK ON NEGRO PROBLEM BURDEN OF SOUTH

Baptist Pastor Lately Returned from South Tells of His Impressions.

That the negro problem is the south's great burden demanding the utmost patience and an intimate understanding of characteristics of the black people, was brought home with emphasis to the Rev. Joseph C. Hazen in his recent trip through the south. He talked on some of the important features of the negro in his Sunday evening address at the Baptist church.

The most prominent characteristic of the negro, declared Rev. Hazen, was his attitude of responsibility and foresight. Work, he said, will do
when the pressure of circumstances demands but he prefers then that the women and children should relieve him of the greater part of the physical labor. And so in the cotton fields there are many more women
and children than there are men.

Along with laziness and, as a result of it, the negro makes no provision for the future. He never has any money or makes any attempt to save, and in spite of that he is carefree and happy. Life carries no worry for him; he is ever ready to forget and forgive. It is his one ambition to get along in the easiest way possible.

At the same time the negro is a willing servant, eager to the bidding
of the white man whom he acknowledges as his superior. Respects seven
when he is badly treated and advances when he is treated well, and whom he never fails to turn when he is in trouble. The southern negro knows his place and keeps it; he has no desire to mingle as an equal with the white man; he is satisfied with his own sphere.

Mr. Hazen pointed out the fact that several of the southern states were spending more than half of the money raised for educational purposes for the establishing of schools
for the negroes. There were schools everywhere equipped with every facility, but still the negroes were slow to take advantage, preferring
rather their usual life of shiftlessness.

One prominent southerner at Vicksburg, whom he visited, declared that after fifty years of freedom during which everything had been done
for them he could not see that the negro was any better off. The white men of the south adopt a spirit of optimism toward their problem, according to Mr. Hazen, in the hope that after centuries, perhaps, the black man will show the improvement anticipated. In the meantime the white people of the south are doing all in their power to help and improve the black race. They realize that they could not get along without the negro as he is a great economic factor still in the business of the southern states.

Mr. and Mrs. Hazen spent some days at Vicksburg and New Orleans.
They were impressed with the natural beauties of both cities, Vicksburg,
especially where they were much interested in the battlefield now transformed into a national park of historic interest.

DISPENSE WITH THRESHOLD

Patent Hinge Raises the Door as It Is Opened—Prevents Wear.

The exposed threshold at interior doors
leaves an unsightly appearance to the room which is objectionable to most housekeepers, and the inventor has designed a hinge which raises the door
as it is opened, thus preventing wear
on the floor.

IT IS OPENED.

designing a hinge which dispenses entirely
with the threshold. By consulting the accompanying cut it will be readily seen how as the door is opened, the action of the hinge is to raise the bottom of the door about half an inch so that it moves entirely free of the carpet. As the door is closed the lowest point is reached, when
the door settles its place in the frame,
so that the opening below is so slight
that the door opening is practically sealed.

Beware the Gray Eye.
Among the gray eyed there are few
who retain any spiritual emotions.
People with gray eyes are superficial,
frivolous, given to embrace false idols,
running down blind alleys, following
false prophets, thoughtless, inconsiderate, wanting in sympathy, neurotic,
unstable, not firm and deliberate, but rash and impetuous.

Foolish Jealousy.
The jealous man throws a thousand
stumbling blocks in his own road.
He often lives in constant fear of the tripping he has prepared the way for.
No philosophy will so surely build him
a smoother way as that based on the sensible conclusion that he could not be the other man and that what he has reason to hope for will be as gratifying as anything another man can get.

MOTHER! IF CHILD'S TONGUE IS COATED

If cross, feverish, constipated, bilious,
stomach sour, give "California Syrup of Figs."

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty
their bowels, which become clogged
up with waste. Liver gets sluggish;
stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross,
feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't
eat heartily, full of cold or has sore
throat or any other children's ailment,
give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless and in a few hours all this constipation
poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftentimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups.
Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs" which has full directions for babies, children
of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Don't be fooled!

No Wonder!

The tired business man was found in a state of collapse on the sixth floor of a downtown office building. Restatives were applied and he sat up feebly. "I'm all right now," he explained; "you see, I wanted to go up to our other office on the tenth floor—and (here he gasped for breath)—I found the elevator going—up!"—New York Evening Post.

Dress and Beauty.

"Dress, next to beauty, is the most deadly weapon in woman's armoury, and often supplies the want of beauty itself."—Orma Balfour.

State Senator R. E. Thornton; Fairfax courthouse (top) and building at Fairfax, Va., where the Martha Washington will was stored in Civil war times.

State Senator R. E. Thornton of Virginia will introduce a bill in the Virginia legislature calling upon the attorney general of the state to proceed legally against J. P. Morgan for the recovery of the stolen Martha Washington will.

How the Children Graded.

An experiment carried on recently with school children to determine how the foreign born compared with the native born shows how marked in effect the environment in this country has on immigrants. It was found that the children with the lowest standing in school were foreign born. The next lowest were those born of foreign-born parents; the next after them were of parents born in this country, and the highest were those whose grandparents or great-grandparents were born here.

Burnt Aluminum Pans.

IMPROVEMENTS

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

"IMPROVEMENTS" are the after-thoughts of science which keep us poor throwing away perfectly good articles that were the wonder of yesterday.

Almost everything in the world is suffering these days from "improvements" except Tammany and the old fashioned shoe-string. Many a man who built a house five years ago and spent all he had for modern "improvements" is saving money now to get rid of them so that he may live comfortably at last.

Last year's automobile was the wonder of last spring. But when its owner looks at it today he weeps and will not be comforted. The busy man who made a self-starter have added eighteen "improvements" to it in the new model, making the old affair too crude for anyone younger than Noah.

The burning question which is before all investors today is—"Will we be able to equip our plant with the latest 'improvements' before they are obsolete?" They will if they hurry, but they will be lucky. Many a factory is still paying for three sets of machinery, all sold to the happy and carefree junk man, because of "improvements."

"Improvements" are a good thing when we fix our minds firmly and stubbornly upon the fact. Without "improvements" we would still be pushing the family groceries home in a wheelbarrow. But without "improvements" we would also be tearing along an automobile of the 1907 crop and enjoying it as much as the millionaire ones did when there was nothing better to get.

"Improvements" have gotten into many walks of life where they are a positive curse. Education has now been improved until the father who tries to teach the little Johnny how to add two and two retires with a headache after little Johnny has tried to explain the method which they used at school.

"Improvements" have filled the country with discarded wives whose husbands have selected a later and more up-to-date model. And "improvements" have changed the size of fruit jar lids, bringing woe and anguish to millions of housewives.

When an inventor invents something he has the rest of his life in which to improve it. When a man says something he has to let it go as it is. There is no chance to improve it or take out a new patent. If we had more "improvements" in our remarks and fewer in our conveniences we would be more nearly happy.

ENGLISH GIRL WITH "NERVES" AND WEAK HEART FIRST WOMAN TO "LOOP THE LOOP"

Miss Trehawke Davies in Hamel's aeroplane just before her flight.

If you were a charming young woman with everything to live for, and your family physician informed you that you had a weak heart and "nerves" would you do what Miss Trehawke Davies, the beautiful English girl shown here, did? Just to prove to the doctor that she had nerve and not "nerves" as he put it, and that her heart though weak still was staunch, she induced Gustav Hamel to take her as his passenger in his "loop the loop" feat during the recent aeronautic meet at Hendon, near London. The aviator and Miss Davies executed a perfect loop at a height of 500 feet.

Dr. Howard A. Kelly.

The word "cure" can now be properly applied to the radium form of treatment of cancer, according to Dr. Howard A. Kelly of Johns Hopkins university, an eminent scientist. At a recent meeting of the College of Physicians and Surgeons at Philadelphia, Dr. Kelly exhibited photographs of patients before and after being cured and told of the cure in forty-eight hours of a man suffering from malignant cancerous growths on the face and head.

HOT TEA BREAKS A COLD-TRY THIS

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Thee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teaspoon full at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once. It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.

On the Bridge-F. J. BAILEY & SON-On the Bridge

January 19, 1914.—The barometric depression that was on the Pacific coast Saturday has now reached the plains. It is less intense and now has no stormy characteristics. Rain and snow has fallen in the lake region and Mississippi and Ohio valleys. It is warmer in the gulf states and Mississippi valley. Light precipitation has fallen on the Pacific slope and the temperature has fallen somewhat, especially in the Columbia basin. Air weather prevails on the Atlantic coast, with seasonable temperatures.

WANTED: Everybody to read the Want Ads in tonight's Gazette.

Where Many Make Mistake.
With a gentle heart and sound reasoning powers a man comes to admire in others the qualities which he himself lacks, but earlier wanted so much that he considered any one possessing them more or less of an enemy. It is only men who have done nothing with a single talent, or possibly a confusing group of talents, who remain to the end of life bitter toward those who have made good, having but one or two.

LACONIC.
The mother of a very wealthy American young lady had for some time hesitated whether her daughter should marry a rather dissipated foreign grandee or a thoroughly impetuous but quiet and gentlemanlike English peer, absolutely warranted to give no trouble. Owing to unsatisfactory reports concerning the foreign grandee, choice ultimately fell upon the English peer. So she cabled to an accommodating English friend: "Grandee off, send along peer."

They could have gone farther but several speaking at once declared that they would return home by train.—Ex-Madison Democrat.

READING CHARACTER BY THE VOICE.

IT is remarkable to me that the voice as an index to the character has never received more attention. We have some character students who read character by the lines on the palm, others who judge by the shape of the head and others who claim to be able to tell us all about a man made of the voice. Now it seems to me that if sufficient study were index to character as any of these.

Voices are tremendously interesting things as you will find if you stop to notice them. A voice reflects its owner's state of health, his education or lack of it, his momentary mood and his habitual personality, to a wonderful degree. If you were to shut your eyes and listen to a person's voice I think you would get quite as good a notion of a better idea of the real person than if you stopped up your ears and judged from sight alone. Of course the blind are the only people who really appreciate the full significance of voices. I imagine they can judge a man's character quite as accurately as the phrenologist or the palmist although such judgment is second nature to them rather than any science.

It seems to me that similar voices run in families even more than similar physiognomies. I think this is because the voice is more plastic and more easily affected by environment than the face. The similar bringing up and the similar point of view which the several members of the family often acquire, mould the voices into similarity more than the faces. I had this family voice similarity strongly brought home to me the other day when I called up a friend of mine on the telephone. I was so positive that the voice which answered was that of my friend that I introduced her to my sister, who said, "It's not Helen speaking," she said, "it's her mother." When my friend came to the telephone she greeted me by my sister's name. It seems that her mother had been equally positive that she recognized my voice as my sister's. Incidentally, it may be interesting to know that neither this girl and her mother, nor my sister and I are strikingly alike in appearance. In no way can you tell whether a person is an optimist or a pessimist so quickly as by the voice. Almost all voices have a decided upward or downward slant by which the owner's inclination toward optimism or pessimism is instantly indicated. The upward voice matches the upward turned mouth corners, and vice versa.

Lack of education shows in the voice just as much as in what the voice says. There is a peculiar, rough quality in the voice of an entirely uneducated person which is an unmistakable sign of underbreeding. Try listening to voices. You will find it opens an interesting vista of thought and observation.

And while you are about it, don't forget to listen to your own.

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

For simple housework, take a fresh egg, beat it and thicken with a cup of sugar. Eat freely of it, and the hoarseness will soon be relieved.

Alum water is fine for brittle finger nails. Soak them a few minutes just before retiring.

Stains of dandruff may be removed by applying yolk of egg and glycerine in equal quantities. Leave it for half an hour and then wash out.

Fur can be removed from silk by rubbing lard on the stains, and then washing in warm soapsuds.

THE TABLE.

Braised Rolled Beefsteak.—Lay upon a board and pound from end to end with a mallet. Cover with a forcement of minced salt pork, onion and seasoned crumbs, let with a little gravy; roll up upon the stuffing and tie into shape. Lay in a roaster; pour in a little cold water (or, better still, weak stock), cover and cook slowly for two hours, basting often with gravy from the pan. Undo the strings carefully after pinning the roll together with skewers, and lay upon a hot dish, covered while you prepare the gravy. Skim, thicken with browned flour, add a good spoonful of kitchen bouquet, boil up and pour into a boat.

Baked Bananas.—Strip off one-third of the skin of each, and with a silver knife loosen the skin around the fruit. Arrange in baking pan with the striped side up; place each banana in a buttered cup, sprinkle with one teaspoonful of sugar and a half teaspoonful of water for each banana, and bake about twenty minutes.

Creamed Young Beets.—Cook with two inches of the stem on to prevent bleeding, and to clip the tap root. Have ready a cupful of cream heated with a pinch of soda. Rub the skins off, and tail the beets, and slice them into the cream, setting the saucepan containing it in boiling water. When all are in stir in a tablespoonful of butter rubbed into one of flour, pepper, salt and a teaspoonful each of sugar and onion juice. Simmer two minutes to cook the flour, and dish.

Stuffed Cabbage.—Choose a fresh, firm cabbage. Lay in cold water for half an hour and boil in salted water for ten minutes. Remove, drain, and wash it to get very cold. Meanwhile make a forcement of a cupful of boiled rice and the same quantity of chopped cold chicken with half a cupful of minced ham. Work to a paste and season. Stand the cabbage on the stem-end and carefully open the leaves, beginning at the center. Fill the space between the layer of leaves with the forcement, close the cabbage with the leaves, and sew the top with a coarse netting, put gently into a pot or boiling salted water, and look at most two hours. Take from the water, remove the netting very carefully, and put the cabbage on a platter and pour a rich cream sauce over it. If properly prepared, this will make a delicious dish.

Fried Celery.—Scrape, cut in inch-lengths, lay in cold water for an hour, and spread upon a cloth to dry. Drain, and spread upon a cloth to dry. Put in a pan of oil, and fry each piece in beaten egg, then in seasoned bread or cracker-dust. Set again the cold oil for an hour, and fry in deep fat to a golden brown. Drain in a hot colander and serve.

Rice Custard Pudding.—Make a white sauce by cooking together, until they bubble, a tablespoonful of butter and one of flour, and pouring on them a cupful of milk. Stir until thick, an dset aside to cool. When cool, beat into this sauce three-quarters of a cupful of cold boiled rice and turn well-beaten eggs. Turn into a buttered pudding-dish, put the dish into a pan of boiling water and cook until the custard is set. A quarter of an hour should suffice. Bat with a vanilla sauce, according to the following directions:

Put a cupful of boiling water into a saucepan over the fire, stir into it two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch dissolved in cold water, one teaspoonful of butter, half a cupful of sugar, a teaspoonful of lemon juice and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Stir until the sauce boils and thickens.

Apple Fritters.—Beat the yolks and whites of five eggs separately. Into the yolks stir three generous cupfuls of sweet milk, a pinch of salt and three scant cupfuls of flour, stirred with a teaspoonful of baking powder. Beat for a minute, add the stiffened whites and when these are blended, add a cupful of peeled and thinly-sliced apples. When the fritters are done and transferred to a hot dish, sprinkle them liberally with powdered sugar to which a little cinnamon has been added.

PARSNIPS, RICH IN FLAVOR, ARE DELICIOUS WINTER DISH

While parsnips are not a general favorite on account of their pronounced flavor, still they are seasonable in the late winter and early spring when other vegetables are scarce, and contain both sugar and starch and some mineral matter.

They are rich in woody fiber and, as they are biennials, are left in the ground during the winter even in the most severe climates and are dug in the spring when they come out then from the ground fresh and delicious in flavor making a dish which is certainly worth trying to eat.

Great care must be taken in cleaning and preparing parsnips for cooking. Scrub well with a vegetable brush, trim off the fine roots and let stand to freshen in cold water. They may be cooked slowly in boiling water and then scraped or scraped first before cooking; but on account of the large amount of woody fiber they must be cooked slowly and sliced lengthwise if very large, but the medium-sized ones are less apt to be spongy or woody.

Boiled Parsnips. Clean and scrape the parsnips as directed and throw at once into cold water. Have water boiling in a sauce pan, put in the parsnips cut in halves and cook slowly until tender, about forty-five minutes. Drain, put them into a baking pan flat side down. Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of sugar in two tablespoonfuls of water, baste well over the parsnips, sprinkle with salt and a little dry sugar, run into a quick oven and cook until a rich brown, basting with sugar water once or twice. This is a fine accompaniment to roast duck or guinea hen.

Parsnip Fritters. Scrape small parsnips, soak them an hour in cold water, drain and boil as directed until tender, but not too soft, as they must not break or fall to pieces. Cut in one-quarter inch slices, dip in fritter batter and fry in deep fat. Another way is to mash and season with salt, pepper and butter, make in cakes, roll in flour and saute in butter.

Parsnip Timbales. Material—Parsnips (medium) six; milk, one-half cup; eggs, two; salt, one teaspoonful; grated onion, one teaspoonful; paprika; bay leaf, one; parsley.

Directions.—Scrape the parsnips, soak in cold water and boil with the bay leaf as directed in the above recipe. Drain well and put through a potato ricer. Beat the eggs until light, add to the rice parsnips with all the other seasoning. Line the bottoms of timbale molds with greased paper, turn in the mixture, stand them in a pan of boiling water, and bake until firm, fifteen or twenty minutes. When done loose the sides with a thin knife and turn out on a heated platter with a thin cream sauce poured around them. Sprinkle all with very finely chopped parsley.

French Parsnip Recipes. The French serve most delicious dishes from the parsnips, as they call parsnips.

A la Creme.—Dressed with salt and cream and garnished with croutons.

A la Hamlin.—Dressed in a puree with a rich white sauce, Hollandaise, covered with green peas.

A la Provencal.—Saute with slices of onion and chopped parsley.

A la Trionon.—Dressed in tomato sauce, with grated cheese and garnished with water cress.

Every Day Talks for Every Day People

BY FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.

It is generally the women who are called "all right," so, are you a discouraging or an encouraging woman? The former begins, before she's well down stairs, "I won't feel a bit good, I have to severe pain, I'm fearful I'll be forced to enter the hospital (pity the attendants), what will children do; what will ever become of John, (poor-to-be-pitied) John."

When John finally leaves for work after a breakfast eaten in silence or in vainly trying to cheer the invalid the children come in for their share. Why not?

"Now Mary I want you to take your rubbers along," I know it will rain! I know you are not going without your muffer, why do you not put it on with being told over and over and over again—ah, will you ever know anything, I wonder? Bessie, see that you bring home better standings than you have, you are so civil; I don't know how I'll ever survive the humiliation of having such a daughter, when I was young I simply sailed through school." And so on, down the verbal road for quite a stretch." Verbal road?—So apt to send a man out discouraged; resolved to in all things do his level best. So apt to induce the children to try each day to do the least bit better than they did the preceding day. Yes!

The encouraging woman runs her ship of state a bit different. If she is not feeling as well as she would wish to, her husband is none the wiser. She does not send him to work with the knowledge, lurking in his brain, that she is much abused, not that she bids him God speed, telling him to be a success—but, to be kind to John. To the children she turns a smiling face, and if the time gets perilously short, as the time has a habit of doing in the morning, she cheerfully tells them that work not worry brings results. When they start for school it is with a cheery adieu, and admonition to be good, and study in school; play at recess.

Do you see the difference? And if so, to which class do you belong? Do you know that turpentine is good for rheumatic and neuralgic pains? Soak a flannel cloth in hot turpentine water and apply to the afflicted parts as hot as can be endured.

That suede gloves can be cleaned by putting them on and rubbing them through a bowl of corn meal, as you would wash your hands. Heavy suede can be freshened by rubbing lightly with sandpaper, which brings up the nap.

Often after making piss you may have just enough crust left to line a solitary pie tin with. Do so, putting a bit of butter over and the next day you can fill it with custard or fruit sauce, and have a very satisfactory dessert without waste of trouble or time.

WOMAN WHO PUT OREGON VILLAGE UNDER MARTIAL LAW ORDERED TO OUST SHERIFF

Miss Fern Hobbs.

Miss Fern Hobbs, who as the private secretary and deputized representative of Governor West of Oregon, put the village of Copperfield in that state under martial law early this month, has been designated by the governor to act as special counsel for the state in proceedings to remove the sheriff of Baker county, in which Copperfield is located, for alleged failure to execute the criminal laws. Copperfield will remain under martial law until the saloon element that caused the trouble gives in.

Where Silence Reigns. Two sadly afflicted husbands were discussing the marriage of a former widow. The first one sighed, turned to his fellow-sufferer, and exclaimed: "How is it that widows generally marry again?" The answer came quickly: "Because dead men tell no tales."

Toboggan Greased for Him. As soon as any community gets the idea that a boy is bad, why, the boy generally gets bad just to prove it, whether he has ever done wrong before or not. It is the easiest way to go; public opinion, has greased the toboggan and the boy takes the downward trip with very little inconvenience or scruple.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—Angeline will stick to the old-fashioned Physical Culture.—

Broadway Jones

George M. Cohan

"I thought it started here."

"No! when I was a kid in Jonesville. That was my name—'Broadway'—just because I wore patent-leather shoes and put on a clean collar, now and then. That's the kind of a town it is."

"I've lived up to the name, I guess. I know every newsboy, policeman, actor, chorus girl, wine agent, gambler and bartender on the street. I've been to bed just one night in five years before six o'clock in the morning and that was when I had a toothache and my face was swollen. It was not the pain that kept me in; it was the looks of the puffed face."

He drew his breath in slowly, almost wonderingly. "Oh, what I haven't done to Broadway!" he continued. "Well, you've seen me. You've been with me. You know."

Wallace nodded. "Always thought you were pretty speedy, but I thought

My intentions were the best in all the world. But I got to thinking of some thing else, after I had walked a block or two, and where do you suppose I was when I woke up? In Delmonico's, eating breakfast! Turned in there out of force of habit."

"I made a dozen attempts to do the right thing. I cut out automobiles and rode in street cars for three days; I went to an opening night at a theater and sat in the gallery; I bought a pair of ready-made shoes; I ate meals at a forty-cent table d'hôte and smoked five-cent cigars—practicing, just practicing, trying to get used to it."

"But I couldn't. That was all—I simply couldn't! All my good resolutions went to smash every time I took a look at Broadway. I knew my credit was good; the things I wanted were there; I could have them; so—well, I took them, that was all!"

"And now," said Wallace, who had sat, at first incredulous, and, later, spellbound, during the recital, "you are fifty thousand dollars in debt!"

"I don't know the exact amount, but that's a fairly good guess."

"You've been pretty quiet about it. It hasn't seemed to worry you much!"

"Hasn't worried me!" Broadway's voice was bitter. "Well, I don't mind telling you that I have just come out of the first sound sleep I've had in weeks. I'll bet I walked to Chicago and back every night the first month I was broke."

"I don't understand?"

"I mean if you had measured up my carpet by the mile. I thought so much and worried so much that I didn't dare trust myself alone. I had the weirdest ideas; I did the craziest things. Do you know that I belong to the Salvation Army?"

"What?"

"On the level. I went to Newark and joined one night."

"What was the idea?"

"I thought it might help me forget my troubles. I played the bass drum for two nights and couldn't stand it any longer. Er—have you ever been in Newark?"

"I've been through there on the train."

"That's bad enough. Guess what I suffered! I got off the train! Oh, you can't realize what I've been through. Bob! I've made a bluff and pretended to be happy all the time; but, believe me, old pal, there have been times when I've started for the Brooklyn bridge—and I won't tell you about a bottle of poison and a gun full of lead which I considered using. I didn't care about the money I'd spent; what worried me was that running in debt, day after day, with no chance of repaying."

"But you kept on accepting credit."

"And it was wrong—dead wrong! But—well, I guess it must be in my blood. I couldn't help it."

"How about your uncle?"

Broadway laughed, a cackling, scornful laugh.

"He's a rich man. Have you tried him?"

"Yes; tried him and found him guilty. I wrote and told him I was short of ready cash, after I had spent the pittance that he paid me for my interest in the Jones gem. I asked him if he wouldn't lend me, say, ten thousand dollars."

"Did he answer?"

"Sure, he answered. Sent me a package of the gum and the advice: 'Chew this and forget your troubles. He's in Europe now. He's worth a million, if he's worth a nickel, and he bought me out for practically nothing!'"

"Stingy?"

"Stingy? He's so mean that every time he's asked to have a drink he takes a cigar and then saves up the cigars, puts them in old boxes, and gives them away for Christmas presents."

"Where have you been getting enough for tips and pocket money?"

"I sold that big French car I said was in dead storage. And do you remember that I said I'd lost a lot of jewelry? I hadn't. I had pawned it. How's my work, eh?"

"You're a wonder! I've got to hand it to you. But why didn't you confide in me long ago?"

"I didn't have enough courage to confide in anyone. I could only keep on hoping that some miracle would happen. I've thought of nothing except money and how to get it."

"And, Bob, last night, at that banquet table, I sat looking at Mrs. Gerard, thinking of her millions and wondering what she'd say to me if I should tell my story, trying to pluck up nerve enough to take her into my confidence and see if she wouldn't help. That's how it started. I didn't realize what I was doing; but I must have been staring at her for ten minutes when she called a waiter who, presently, handed me a note."

"What did it say? Was it from her?"

"Yes, and it said: 'Why do you stare at me so?'"

"Did you answer it?"

"Yes."

"What did you say?"

"Oh, I couldn't help it—I was desperate. I said 'Because I love you!'"

"And she answered?"

"Yes; 'I love you, too.'"

"And you wrote?"

"Not as much as I love you. We had quite a correspondence. Seven or eight notes each way."

"Who sent the last one?"

"She did, and it said: 'Will you marry me?'"

"She really proposed to you?"

"On the level, and I didn't say a thing. The letter carrier lost his job right there. For fear she'd change her mind before the next mail arrived I leaned across the table and yelled: 'Yes!'"

"I'd gone, you know. Exactly what then happened?" Wallace asked.

"She fainted; general excitement, smelling salts; she slowly came back to her senses. Then the usual speech: 'Where am I? That was my cue of course—although it hurt! Embrace, kiss, announcement to the dinner party; wild applause. Then somebody ordered 20 cases of wine.'

"And the next thing I remember is old Rankin calling me when you came here today. What do you think of all of it?"

"It's terrible! You can't afford to let it go any further."

"I can't afford to do anything, with

"You're Not Sore at Me, Bob, Are You?"

out signing a tab for it," said Broadway ruefully.

"You can do something. Haven't you any 'get up and go'?"

"That seems to be all that is left for me—to get up and go—as far as possible—unless I marry her."

"If you'd go to work you'd have the makings of a business man."

"If I went to work I wouldn't have the makings of a cigarette."

"How do you know? You haven't tried. I'll get you a job."

"Where?"

"With my firm, on my recommendation."

"You'll lose your reputation."

"I'll see the governor tomorrow. I can get you, probably, five thousand a year to start with."

"Five thousand a year? How could I stay here in New York on that? I pay more for this apartment! I owe ten times that much, right now!"

"I've got twenty thousand dollars of my own. I'll lend you that."

"I'd never be able to pay it back."

"That doesn't make any difference."

"Yes, it does," said Broadway stubbornly. "Even though you loaned me enough to pay up all I owe, I'd owe you, wouldn't I? What's the odds whether I'm in debt to you or to the other fellow? I'd never get even with the world that way."

"But you mustn't marry her; it isn't right."

"How do you mean?"

"Would you do anything so low, and so contemptible, as to marry a woman deliberately for her money?"

Broadway shrank a little, then rose in self-defense. "Who says I'm marrying her for her money?"

"You know you don't love her."

Broadway answered hotly. He felt that he must answer hotly. It was the only thing remaining for him.

"I don't know anything of the kind! Now, you see here; suppose you were in trouble. Wouldn't you love anyone who'd come along and help you out of it?" He sighed. "Besides, it's too late now. The engagement's been announced."

Wallace was intensely stubborn. He would not have this thing. "Engagements are broken every day in the week," he argued earnestly.

Broadway made a gesture of dissent. "Now, you leave it all to me," said Wallace soothingly. "I'll have a talk with Mrs. Gerard, and I'll guarantee to prove to her that it's all an utter impossibility. You needn't enter into it at all. I'll take the whole thing on my shoulders, and—"

Broadway shook his head emphatically, although regretfully. "No; there's no use, Bob. I told you I wouldn't listen to any argument against it. My mind is quite made up, and that's all there is to it." He pulled a yellow-back out of his pocket. "See this? A hundred dollars. That's my bank roll."

Wallace went to him with friendly warning. "You'll lose every friend you ever had in all the world!"

"No; I won't; people with money never lose their friends."

"I know one you'll lose," said Wallace gravely.

"You?"

Dinner Stories

"It's triplets!" announced the nurse.

"Really!" said the astonished father.

"I can scarcely believe my own census!"

Elisba Lee, counsel for the railroads in the recent arbitration proceedings in New York, said at a recent luncheon:

"Well, the poor railroads, at any rate, have got rid of the pass evil. Cornelius Vanderbilt used to tell a story about that."

"Mr. Vanderbilt said that a man once called and asked him for a pass over the New York Central to Albany."

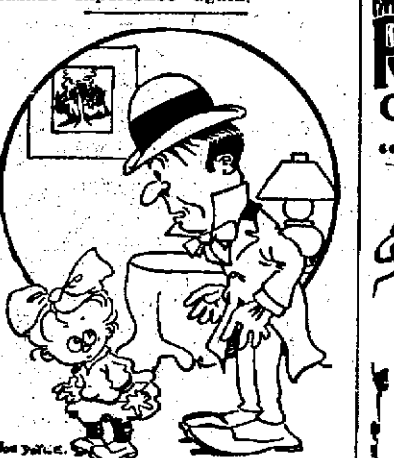

"Why do you ask for a pass?" said Mr. Vanderbilt.

"Because I'm so sensitive," the man answered.

"So sensitive? What's that got to do with the matter?"

"Well, I'll tell you, Mr. Vanderbilt, the applicant explained. 'I went up to Albany on your line last week and I was the only man on the whole train that paid his fare. The other passengers gived me about it like the dickens, and I'm so very sensitive I don't want to go through such an unpleasant experience again."

SAW HIM FIRST.
Caller—Will you see if your sister is in. Sister—Yes, sir, but I don't think she will be. She saw you coming up the steps.

RESINOL RELIEVED ITCHING AT ONCE

And Completely Cured Skin Humors.

Nov. 1, 1912—"At first little red spots were seen on my arms and body, which I noticed were getting larger every day. They itched me so much that I scratched myself until I bled. There were times when I could not sleep at night and scratched myself all night and scratched. I was troubled about three weeks, during which time I used—, which seemed to do me no good whatever. Then, finally, I thought of trying Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment. As soon as I applied Resinol Ointment I felt much relief. After using it a few times, I noticed the sore spots slowly fading away, and in about a month I was cured." (Signed) Adolph Schoen, 742 Shepherd Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

The soothing, healing balsam in Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap, penetrate every tiny pore of the skin, clearing it of all impurities, driving away eczema, rashes, ringworm, psoriasis, and other eruptions, and making pimples and blackheads impossible. Decidedly in the Way.

An army chaplain came across a baggage column with a wagon stuck fast. "Men, I see you're in difficulties," he said. "Can I be of any assistance?" "Yes, sir," exclaimed one of the drivers, "by making yourself scarce! You see, we can't very well say to the horses what they'd understand while you're about."

THAT TIRED FEELING

Suggests Grandmother's Remedy.

It's true, the season is here with its sudden changes, and the old idea that we need a blood-medicine is not without reason. Too much heavy food has caused a torpid liver, sluggish blood, and a weak, tired out feeling.

Sulphur, cream of tartar and molasses was grandmother's remedy but that has long ago been displaced by Vinol, a combination of the two most world famed tonics, namely, the medicinal curative elements of the cod's liver, without oil, and iron for the blood.

Vinol builds you up makes you eat more and digest better, makes your blood rich and pure—puts healthy color in your cheeks.

N. G. Clift, of Opelika, Ala., says: "Last spring, I was all run-down, no strength, no appetite. I took Vinol and was greatly benefited by its use, as I soon felt strong and well as ever."

"We guarantee Vinol to satisfy you and refund your money if it does not. Smith Drug Co., Druggists, Janesville, Wis."

P. S. For Children's Eczema, Sazo Salve is guaranteed truly wonderful.

you could afford it. The trouble with you is you've been too liberal."

"Liberal! Why, when I go into a restaurant the waiters come to blows to see who'll get me. In barber shops as I approach you'd think some one had just yelled 'Fire!' the way the barbers dash for the chairs. Oh, I've been the bright-eyed baby boy around this town, all right. It's cost me a fortune—all I had."

His voice trailed into silence; Wallace sat looking at him dumb.

"But I've had a wonderful time!" said Broadway finally.

"How long have you been broke?"

"About six months. My credit's carried me on. When I first went broke I made up my mind I wouldn't run in debt, no matter what happened. I put on an old suit of clothes that morning, and started out looking for a job."

"What kind of a job?"

"Any kind of a job. Messenger boy, elevator boy—I didn't care! I promised myself I'd earn my living without begging, borrowing or stealing."

He told Wallace of his stealthy search for the elusive job which was to have paid up his debts and started him again, this time as a millionaire in process of construction of new millions.

"I started looking for a 'boy-wanted' sign. It sounds funny, but it is a fact."

AN OLD REMEDY

Beef, Iron and Wine is one of the good old remedies that has outlived a score of patent tonics, reasonable in price, a satisfactory tonic, appetizer and mild stimulant. There is nothing better for that tired, worried, listless feeling or run-down condition of the system after illness of any kind. It tones the whole system, stimulates digestion, gives you appetite, is a good iron tonic for weak, pale children or old people, far more effective than malt extracts or so-called wine of cod liver oil that depend upon their stimulants alone. Beef, Iron and Wine tones and sustains, it assists nature to recuperate, it's a food to the sick and nursing mothers.

Mr. Pfennig, our Graduate Pharmacist and Chemist, prepares our Beef, Iron and Wine. It's always fresh, made from the very best extract of beef, wholesome, properly aged sherry wine and soluble iron.

We factory-manufactured Beef, Iron and Wine. We believe and know that medicine should be compounded only by the experienced and scientifically trained.

Try a bottle of our Beef, Iron and Wine as made by Mr. Pfennig, 75c a full pint. Note its wholesome taste and invigorating effect. You will be more than satisfied. Get it at the Badger Drug Co., Milwaukee and River streets.

Spanish Dignity.
Dignity is the prevailing instinct among every class in Spain, says a woman who has spent much time in that land of romance. The very beggars ask for alms with dignity and if you have nothing to give you do not shout "Go away!" but if you are a Spaniard—"Go thou with God; I have nothing for thee today."
